

Here's To Spring and A New Outlook

"You are not here for any destiny but to live, and in every moment of living to do what the creative self, the soul, urges you to do...And once you find out that you are worth experiencing it all, you can put forth your light into any fulfillment that pleases you."

Ramtha

"The key is controlled urgency, treating every matter as something urgent to get done...It means less time spent on useless conversation, less waiting..."

Charles H. Ford

Lately I have become aware of major themes running through the minds and hearts of many of my clients, largely, that they experience a lack of ability to manifest their true thinking. They seem unable to conquer their long bouts of procrastination and are left with a general feeling that they are unworthy of great gifts unfolding around them. During many intuitive consultations I am struck by how many meaningful questions clients dance around and how often they prolong our time together with inane ramblings reflecting self-doubt, self-punishment and total disregard for their divine position in the Universe. While in trance-state, I rarely if ever remember such a time in the past when Spirit has pushed me to literally start shoving my clients towards new positions of earthly and divine power. It is as if The One knows we must move swiftly and cannot abide our lack of love and compassion for our true selves who must now unfold upon the earth plane or lose considerable ground in heaven.

It is said at the dawning of every New Age there is a passion expressed like no other time. This passion bursts through every aspect of nature and society to produce dramatic changes upon the surface of our multi-dimensional canvas. The time is here and now, when we can be manifesting our new destiny. Between the tsunamis, the earthquakes, the wars of terror and the fast-changing regimes of power on earth, we walk, often in mundane worlds, afraid of real change. The friction of God's Universe propels millions into action every day through elections, matriculation through institutions of higher learning, through marriage and death. And yet, we still stall for time to figure out a greater meaning to our life - to delay love and laughter and periods of illumination. Why should this path of bliss be so difficult to walk upon when, as Sir George Trevelyan tells us in A Vision of the Aquarian Age, "... that the higher worlds are deeply concerned with what happens on this planet. They are prepared to pour in the powers of light - but only if a sufficient number (of people) will invoke them and call on them to descend?" We have the higher support of worlds manifesting at many levels of truth and every day in the news and within, we are provided with adequate motivation to move forward and yet we still do not spring into action. Why?

I believe that Anthony De Mello provides a brilliant insight into our worldly lethargy by pointing out in his insightful book, Awareness, that all fears come down to one original fear. To paraphrase his words, he suggests that our greatest fear and the beginning of all doubt on the earth-plane may come from a lack of resolve in our basic belief about God's inherent goodness or desire to be evil. In other words, do you believe in a God of Good who motivates, enhances and embraces us with love to move the very mountains in our way or are you in doubt about the celestial power that motivates wonder, awe and the unfolding of brilliance in every aspect of your life every day? Father De Mello, in the finest tradition of Jesuit fathers throughout history, may have pegged the very reason we were thrown out of Paradise right from the start!

I believe this time of change is asking for the god-man within to answer this very ancient question. Are you a child of God or the demons who haunt you? In this new start to the unfolding power of the earth, our Spring, is it time for us to answer this question once and for all so that we may go blindly (without the guidance of ego), and with great daring, into the outer chambers of Eden. It is time to plant the seeds of your divine intention. As She (Mother Earth) unfolds the very fertile ground of the wisdom of the Creators before us, what seeds will bear the fruit of the entranceway to Nirvana within you? Within each of us. In the words of the most blind that walked amongst us and a great sage of light, Ms. Helen Keller, "Life is either a daring adventure or nothing."

So, what seeds will you be planting this Spring? May I suggest part of your garden be dedicated to beauty, a small part to color and we must not forget flowers of a most divine scent as well as God's herbs to help you heal what ails you. Plant seeds of action, wonder and true compassion. What you think, feel and act upon in this New Age of ours directly reflects upon the face of God you express to the world, which in turn, acts out upon the Earth every day. Plant smiles, and more patience and impatience (forgive me my gardeners joke). Turn over the very fertile ground within you and unearth all those dreams from the past but, stand ready to bring them to fruition. Let us start out this new quest of ours to re-forest the earth with beautiful foliage by remembering to honor our God of Love within and never lose sight of Their smiling face again.

Wayne Dyer and so many other beings of enlightenment keep reminding us that our intentions must be kept cleaned and pressed, always ready to be displayed upon various realities. "Spring," the verb, by its own definition is a movement that we express in any direction. Let us choose to move forward our divine goals today without a reluctance to wait for others to catch up to us, approve of us or hold our hands. In the words of Edith Wharton and in the hope of Spring eternal, may we be the generation that, "...seemed to come suddenly upon happiness as if they had surprised a butterfly in the winter woods."
